Rate Study Information

The Department of Natural Resources and Conservation (DNRC) has collected water and wastewater rate information from communities for the last 6 years. Information has been requested and compiled in the fall of 2013, 2015, 2017 and 2019.

A request for rate information was sent out to communities in the fall of 2019. Communities were provided their previous rate study information that was on file for the community, and they were asked to complete the current rate information. DNRC requested that the information be returned by January of 2020.

The rate study information being provided is raw data. Communities use different methods to charge their rate payers. Some communities use a flat monthly rate, while other communities use a monthly usage rate. There can be a vast difference in how communities pay for their water and wastewater services.

This raw data is used to show what communities in Montana are charging for their water and wastewater services. The last column in the spreadsheet shows the percentage change between 2017 and 2019. This is an average of the user rates and is information that DNRC receives voluntarily from communities.
