Panorama of Sherburne Reservoir Dam Site.
Reservoir outlet tower is shown left of center.
Circa 1915 - Courtesy of USBR

Steam Shovel and construction crews at work during construction of Sherburne Dam.
Circa 1915 - Courtesy of USBR

Base of Outlet Tower at Sherburne Dam.
Circa 1915 - Courtesy of USBR

Construction of Outlet Tower at Sherburne Dam.
Circa 1915 - Courtesy of USBR

Construction of Outlet Tower at Sherburne Dam.
Circa 1915 - Courtesy of USBR

Construction of spillway channel on Sherburne Dam.
Circa 1915 - Courtesy of USBR

Road Grader.
Circa 1900s - Courtesy of USBR

Site preparation work.
Circa 1900s

Excavating middle pier for bridge that will carry siphons over the St. Mary River.
Circa 1915 - Courtesy of USBR

Steel for St. Mary River siphons were brought to the site by mule teams.
Circa 1912-1915 - Courtesy of USBR

Steel for St. Mary River siphons.
Circa 1912-1915 - Courtesy of USBR

Construction of St. Mary River siphon; each siphon is 90 inches in diameter & approximately 3,200 feet long. Circa 1912-1915 - Courtesy of USBR

Repair work on left barrel of St. Mary River siphon. The Bureau of Reclamation's "Camp 9" in background. Circa 1930's - Courtesy of USBR
Spider Coulee flume.
This structure crossed the coulee that is now Spider Lake.
Courtesy of USBR

Dragline clearing slide material from St. Mary Canal.
Circa 1952 - Courtesy of USBR

Installation of left barrel of Hall's Coulee siphon. Barrel is 78 inches in diameter & approximately 1,405 feet long. Circa 1912-1915 - Courtesy of USBR

Hall's Coulee siphon: At the time of this photo, the right siphon barrel had not been built. Concrete saddle supports for right barrel are seen running parallel to left barrel.
Circa 1912-1915 - Courtesy of USBR

Construction of chute and pool at Drop #1.
Courtesy of USBR

Construction of chute and pool at Drop #4.
Courtesy of USBR

Completion of Drop #2.
Courtesy of USBR