DNRC Rate Information

The Department of Natural Resources and Conservation (DNRC) has collected rate information from communities for the last 10 years. Information has been requested and compiled in the fall of 2013, 2015, 2017, 2019, 2021, 2023 and 2025.

A request for rate information was sent out to communities in the fall of 2025. Communities were asked to complete the current rate information. DNRC requested that the information be returned by January of 2026.

The rate information being provided is raw data. Communities use different methods to charge their rate payers. Some communities use a flat monthly rate, while other communities use a monthly usage rate. There can be a vast difference in how communities pay for their water and wastewater services.

This raw data is to give some ideas on what different communities are charging for their water and wastewater services. The last column in the spreadsheets shows the percentage change between 2023 and 2025. This is an average of the user rates and is information that DNRC receives voluntarily from communities.
