The Department of Natural Resources and Conservation, Trust Land Management Division, has adopted the above categorical exclusions for real estate activities conducted on state trust lands. “Categorical Exclusion” refers to a type of action that does not individually, collectively, or cumulatively require an EA or EIS unless extraordinary circumstances occur (ARM 36.2.522(5)).

Extraordinary Circumstances:

Will the proposed action affect one or more of the following resources, species or situations in the project area? If the resource, species, or situation is present, but project design avoids potential adverse effects on the resource, the answer is “No”. One “Yes” answer indicates that Categorical Exclusion is not appropriate for the project, and an EA or EIS must be conducted.

YES NO

- YES NO a) upon sites with high erosion risk.
- YES NO b) where critical habitat for federally listed threatened and endangered species may be affected
- YES NO c) where Native American religious and cultural sites may be affected
- YES NO d) where archaeological sites may be affected
- YES NO e) where historic properties and areas may be affected
- YES NO f) where several related categorically-excluded individual activities may cumulatively result in significant impacts to the human environment because they will either occur closely in time, or in the same geographic area. Such related actions may be subject to environmental review even if they are not individually subject to review
- YES NO g) where the activity would result in a violation of any applicable local, state, or federal laws or regulations

The project listed above meets the definition of the indicated categorical exclusion, including specified conditions and extraordinary circumstances, as provided in the Real Estate Management Project Rules (ARM 36.25.918).
